TAPSTALL

Stop fake proof of payment

A one-page guide for shops that take orders on WhatsApp and get paid by mobile wallet or bank transfer.

How fake proof of payment happens

- An edited or recycled screenshot of a payment that never reached your account.
- A forwarded or typed-out "payment message" that did not come from your provider.
- A real payment for a smaller amount, or one already used for another order.
- Pressure: "I am in a hurry, the driver is waiting", so the check gets skipped.

Five checks before you hand over goods

1. Check your own account, or the message your provider sent you; never only the customer's screenshot.
2. Match the exact amount.
3. Match the sender name or reference, and the time.
4. A payment you cannot find yet is not received, however urgent the customer sounds.
5. Mark each payment as used for one order, so it cannot be claimed twice.

How Tapstall makes the money tell you

Customers order from your menu on one page and pay straight into your own wallet or bank account; Tapstall never holds your money. Each order shows the exact amount and a short reference to pay, so you match the money that lands in your account to the order, not to a screenshot.

> A screenshot proves nothing. The payment does.

Set up in about two minutes

1. Add your menu: names and prices.
2. Add the account your customers pay into.
3. Share your one link on your WhatsApp status, your bio and your groups.

Start free
No commission on your sales.

tapstall.zlnew.workers.dev/onboard

From Tapstall, a Jacaranda Labs venture. P.O. Box 900, Bulawayo, Zimbabwe